Q. I have noticed considerable strength and activity in the shares of the Continental Candy Company of late. Can you tell me, if possible the cause of this and a brief history of

A. Continental Candy Company was incorporated under the laws of New York during the current year. It took over several candy companies, part of which had been owned by the Corn Products Refining Co. Continental now owns a large factory at Jersey City and another at Chicago, in addition to other small plants. Its total employees number over 700, and it has machinery and utensils for the manufacture of all kinds of candy, confectionery supplies, &c. The capitaligation is fixed at 500,000 shares, of no par value, of which all have been imsued. A portion was sold to the public at $8 a share and the balance was given for some of the properties acquired at the time the company was formed. The declared capital of the company at the time it started business was $2,500,000. It has no funded debt. Present output is estimated at a. 000,000 pounds per month. Recenrise in the stock is attributed to increased sales and subsequent increased earnings. Plans for 1920 call for a production of between $0,000,000 % | and 40,500,000 pounds.

The answer is that Chiropractic is on the same high plane as the nedical profession, and yet it has none of its characteristics.

Chiropractic is new. The practice of medicine and surgery, as it is generally mown, has, in its essentials, been the same for centuries. It is traditional. Every-known, has, in its essentials, been the same for centuries. It is traditional. Everyone knows of it as they know their A. B. C.'s.

The knowledge of Chiropractic is only just beginning to be disseminsted among the people at large. No new thing of use or benefit to the world has become successful, in comparatively recent years, except as its merits have been presented through the medium of high-class advertising. Advertising of this kind is educational, and it is a campaign of education that the Chiropractors of New York have undertaken.

Meeting the same hard fate that all revolutionary projects in the varieties lines of human endeavor have encountered. Chiropractic has had to contend

Meeting the same hard fate that all revolutionary projects in the various lines of human endeavor have encountered, Chiropractic has had to contend with the opposition of well-organized associations and organizations with those tenets it conflicted. It has been fought and fought hitterly, by medical and surgical associations, by the allopaths and the osteopaths. It has had to contend, on the other hand, with the ignorance of thousands of people who would not listen to its teachings nor believe in its successes, because it was new. It has met legislative opposition in some States because its enemics were able to exert great influence among the lawmakers and in the columns of the press; and yet in spite of these obstacles it has won, so that in a score of States Chiropractic has been legalized and stands on the same basis as the various branches of the medical profession.

Before consulting a Chiropractor always make inquiry of the Chiropractic Bureau of Public Information. Address all inquiries to C. B., Box 50,—The Evening World, New York City.
